

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A package of layered nonwoven strip material is formed by an apparatus having a driven belt that surrounds and uniformly compresses the layers of strip material. The package is formed with strips supplied at negligible tension to promote uniform growth and pressure. As a result, the material in the package is not damaged, and the package is independently stable.